

Conférence

Maison

universitaire France-Japon

Université de Strasbourg

« The History of Insects: Insights from Japanese Fossil Sites »

Inscription obligatoire :

► mujapon@unistra.fr

13 février 2025 | à 17h30

Maison universitaire France-Japon
42a, avenue de la Forêt Noire
67000 Strasbourg

Conférence de

Mr Nozomu Oyama

*Muséum National d'Histoire
Naturelle (MNHN) – CNRS – Sorbonne Université*

Insects are the largest group among terrestrial taxa and have played crucial roles in ecosystems as producers, consumers and decomposers. The oldest known insect fossil, dating back approximately 400 million years, was discovered in Scotland. Since their appearance, insects have achieved remarkable diversity over time. Fossil records are vital for directly understanding their evolutionary history.

I will introduce the evolutionary history of insects in relation to Japan's fossil insect localities.